MORNING LECTURE

Farmer to open global health week

Rebecca McKinsey
Staff Writer

A man who has tirelessly sought to tackle a global health care crisis by helping one person at a time will speak at Chautauqua today.

Paul Farmer is one of the founders of Partners In Health, an international organization that provides medical care and advocates for social justice for underprivileged patients across the world. He will speak at 10:45 a.m. today in the Amphitheater.

Farmer

Partners In Health was originally based in Haiti and has more recently expanded to Russia and several countries in Africa and Central and South America. As Farmer traveled to Chautauqua directly from Rwanda, he could not be reached for comment.

"(Farmer) was chosen to lead off the season because he is such a wonderful example of providing global aid," said Sherra Babcock, director of the Department of Education. "He'll bring an inspirational opening for the season and the week, and he'll bring a practical story of applying his medical knowledge to the problems of Haiti and Rwanda."

Farmer's international medical work was highlighted in the book Mountains Beyond Mountains: The Quest of Dr. Paul Farmer, A Man Who Would Cure The World, by Tracy Kidder.

EVENING ENTERTAINMENT

'40s music to electrify stage

Elora Tocci
Staff Writer

The Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra and The Pied Pipers will bring back the "good ol' days" at 8:15 p.m. tonight in the Amphitheater.

The group will play '40s music with a universal appeal — think Frank Sinatra with a Michael Buble twist.

"We want to keep the era alive and tap into the younger market, get young people excited about '40s-inspired music," said Nancy Knorr, vocalist for The Pied Pipers.

Knorr will grace the stage with her brother Bill Tole, who leads the orchestra. The two take pride in keeping alive the musical legacy of another sibling duo — Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey.

"It feels like history repeating itself," Knorr said.

The Dorsey brothers performed together in their early years but argued a lot and went their separate ways before coming back together much later in their musical lives.

"They were both very talented, and to be able to keep their music alive and bring their influences together again is very special," Knorr said.

The sibling chemistry adds electricity to the group that keeps its members smiling throughout each set they play. Knorr said the constant traveling the group does can be draining, dealing with the wear and tear inherent in traversing the country on a regular basis. But passion for the music and performing overrides the weariness.

"We love the era and the music so much and are driven by each performance that we are able to overcome all the obstacles," she said.

And for Knorr in particular, the performance in Chautauqua means a homecoming of sorts. Her first job with The Pied Pipers in 1983 was at the Institution, and she said she holds that performance as one of her fondest memories.

"I fell in love with Chautauqua and everything around it, and I love seeing it on the itinerary," she said. "Even if the sun isn't shining, we'll bring warmth into the Amphitheater."

LOGAN CHAMBER MUSIC SERIES

Del Sol String Quartet showcases contemporary chamber music

Lauren Hutchison
Staff Writer

From panpipes to Persian modes, the Del Sol String Quartet brings contemporary composers from around the world to a chamber music setting. At 4 p.m. today, violinists Kate Stenberg and Rick Shinozaki, violist Charlton Lee and cellist Kathryn Bates Williams will fill Elizabeth S. Lenna Hall with the music of living composers.

The San Francisco-based quartet formed in 1995 when Stenberg met Lee. Shinozaki joined in 2003, and Bates Williams joined in 2010. All members of the quartet have connections to the San Francisco Conservatory of Music.

The quartet's violinists and violist do standing performances.

"(Standing up during performances) gives us a bit more physical freedom and helps us with our expressiveness in music," Shinozaki said.

Del Sol also interacts with its audiences by introducing each piece and providing talking points to give a glimpse of the sound world and language of the composer, he said.

AFTERNOON LECTURE

Dybul opens week of lectures on maternal, child well-being

Emma Morehart
Staff Writer

Despite their differences, religion and maternal mortality go hand in hand.

"We can't address health issues without dealing with faith communities, and in many of these communities, the most important leaders are faith leaders," said Ambassador Mark Dybul, the co-director of the O'Neill Institute for National and Global Health law at Georgetown University and the Interfaith Lecture Series' first guest lecturer.

Chautauqua's Department of Religion collaborated with the Global Health Council to present "Toward a Healthy World: Maternal and Child Wellbeing," the first week of Interfaith lectures. Dybul will present "Faith and Global Health: Opportunities and Challenges to Create a More Perfect World" today at 2 p.m. in the Hall of Philosophy. Jeff Sturchio, the president and CEO of the Global Health Council, will introduce Dybul.

The Global Health Council works to ensure that programs are in place to improve maternal and child health around the world, an aspect that is key on the global health agenda, Sturchio said.

Approximately 1,000 women die each day in developing countries because of complications during childbirth, and most of these deaths are easily preventable, Sturchio added.

Faith-based organizations, from hospitals to churches, provide the majority of health services to Africans. The benefit is that when faith leaders change their perceptions of maternal health, the members of their communities will often follow.

"I'll discuss how we got to where we are, but also ... how we could do things differently and how engaging the faith community could help," Dybul said, adding that there are several challenges to addressing this issue from a religious angle.

Higie Lectureship helps fund Farmer lecture

The Higie Family Lectureship, an endowment in the Chautauqua Foundation, provides funding for today’s 10:45 a.m. lecture featuring Paul Farmer, founder of Partners In Health.

Bill, Pauline and the rest of the Higie family’s interest in law, business, communication, health and fitness and their love of Chautauqua were key in their decision to sponsor a lecture. Bill and Pauline have been coming to Chautauqua since they were married. In 1982, they bought a home in Summer Haven, a lakefront community next to the grounds to make their summer residence at Chautauqua more permanent. The love for Chautauqua has been passed down to the Higies’ four children and their grandchildren.

Bill was vice president, secretary and general counsel at Forest Oil Corporation in Bradford, Pa. He has also been active in the Catholic community and served on the board of directors as vice president and a member of several committees. Bill was a chair of the committee that established the Catholic House at Chautauqua. Bill has also served on the Institution’s Finance Committee and Religion Committee.

Pauline was a speech pathologist in Bradford. She has been deeply involved in Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle — particularly in banner preservation. She is a member of the Class of 1989. Pauline is also a member of Women’s Club and Bird, Tree & Garden Club. She has taken many Special Studies classes at Chautauqua.

If you would be interested in discussing the possibility of establishing an endowed lectureship or supporting another aspect of Chautauqua’s program, please contact Karen Blozie, director of gift planning, at 716-357-6244 or email her at kblozie@ciweb.org.

Mackenzie Fund sponsors Dybul lecture

The Mackenzie Fund for Chautauqua, an endowment in the Chautauqua Foundation, funds the interfaith lecture today featuring Ambassador Mark Dybul, the co-director of the Global Health Law Program at Georgetown University.

The Mackenzie Fund was established upon the retirement of Ross Mackenzie as Chautauqua’s Director of the Department of Religion to honor his and his wife Flora’s service to the Institution. Mackenzie served as director of the department from 1989 to 1999 and subsequently served as the Institution’s historian until 2002. He is the author of When Stars and Stripes Met Hammer and Sickle, which describes the Chautauqua Conferences on U.S.-Soviet Relations.

Prior to his appointment at Chautauqua, Ross was a professor of church history at the Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Va., for 20 years. A native of Scotland, Mackenzie was educated at the University of Edinburgh. He immigrated to the United States in 1959 after being invited to become a pastor in Richmond through a church exchange program.

Flora Mackenzie served as a constant and positive presence throughout her husband’s career and the raising of their family. While at Chautauqua, Flora oversaw the Hall of Missions with graciousness and warmth. She was an Elder of the First Presbyterian Church in Jamestown and was active on behalf of numerous organizations throughout Chautauqua County.

The Mackenzies currently reside in Richmond.

MUSIC

Unconventional summer in store for piano students

Leah Rankin
Staff Writer

The Piano Program at the School of Music is, in a word, unconventional. As piano students introduce themselves to each other and faculty through a private “Play-In” today, they embark on a summer program that will allow them the opportunity to learn adventurous approaches to making music.

Rebecca Penneys, accomplished pianist and professor at the Eastman School of Music, believes in teaching music by connecting the mind and body.

She firmly believes in obtaining the “maximum result with minimum effort,” which for some students means bouncing to the tempo on an exercise ball. For others, it means attending the weekly Piano Mind Body Tune-up classes that teach holistic methods of playing efficiently while leaving all the worries of performance anxiety and tension behind.

“Music is a real healing place for me,” Penneys said. “If I have an ache or pain, I can go to the piano for 10 minutes and feel better. It’s like a massage.”

Penneys says the structure of the School of Music — also known as the Chautauqua Music Festival — is a welcome change of pace for both her and her students. Because there are no academic curriculum, juries, papers or exams, students can easily find the five hours every day they need to practice.

“I never have to ask anyone to practice here,” Penneys said.

But that doesn’t mean the close to 25 pianists enrolled in the School of Music aren’t going to be busy. As students engross themselves in solo and chamber repertoire, guest artists will visit the school on a weekly basis to teach master classes and give recitals, all of which are open to the public.

Guests this year include young Ukrainian pianist Alexander Gavrylyuk; Omri Shimron, one of Penneys’ former students; and Svetozar Ivanov, a pianist known for combining his music with other art mediums like animation and photography.

Piano students will also be able to hear their mentors perform in a series of faculty concerts. The first faculty recital, featuring pianist Nicola Melville and bassoonist Jeffrey Robinson, is scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday in Fletcher Music Hall.

The summer piano program culminates in a competition at the end of Week Five. A handful of judges will convene to determine a winner, who will perform a concerto with the Music School Festival Orchestra. Last year’s winner, John Marcin, will join the MSFO July 11 for a performance of Robert Schumann’s Piano Concerto in A Minor, Op. 54.

This year’s students have a batch of brand new Steinway pianos and newly refurbished air-conditioned practice rooms.

“It feels like you’re in heaven,” Penneys said.

Penneys noted that about a third of her Chautauqua students return each year. In part, she thinks this is because the lessons learned while practicing an instrument are also lessons for life.

Students are given the space and time to practice in the nurturing environment of Chautauqua, a place Penneys calls “a Disneyland for the arts.”

Massey Memorial Organ receives yearly calibration, cleaning

Adorn yourself like an operatic superstar

Artist D’Andrade presents couture at trunk show to raise scholarship money

Sandy D’Andrade thinks couture and opera should be seen and worn by everyone. To illustrate the point, she is having the first trunk show this season to raise money for Chautauqua Opera scholarships.

This much anticipated Chautauqua tradition takes place today at the Athenaeum Hotel and is a mainstay of this season’s Chautauqua Opera Guild Program.

D’Andrade makes unique, wearable knits and has created both “non-operatic” garments and designs specifically based on this season’s operas. A portion of all proceeds will be donated to the Chautauqua Opera Guild’s Young Artists Program.

Sandy comes up with her opera designs by researching the librettos (lyrics) for all the operas. She and her husband, Matthew Alperin, are both opera fans and originally came to Chautauqua in 2003 for a one weekend trunk show, to benefit the Opera Guild.

“It was so successful that year, and each year since, that it has become our favorite place to show our work. And, over time, we expanded the benefit trunk shows to both coincide and tie-in to each of the operas every season.”

D’Andrade wants Chautauquans to know all her designs, both her “non-operatic” creations and her opera ensembles, can be made in a variety of colors and custom sizes.

D’Andrade knits all her own designs and thinks Chautauquans are ideal customers because, “They get it. They know knits are durable and travel well. They’re interested in art, travel and want something that’s unique,” she said.

D’Andrade hails from Philadelphia, and her work has been displayed at the Philadelphia Museum Show and permanent costume collections at various museums. Bergdorf Goodman has purchased her designs in the past.

She views her profession as the natural extension of her background and interest in art, as well as her genetic tendencies toward clothing.

“My mother was always interested in clothing, and the minute she found out I sold some designs to Bergdorf Goodman, she started respecting my choice,” she said.

D’Andrade’s glamorous grandmother was an even bigger influence. Her maternal grandmother, Sarah Slakoff, was an independent buyer during the Depression.

“She would go to Paris and New York and sell the designs to little stores and boutiques,” D’Andrade said.

Her grandmother was “wilder than the family lets on,” she said. D’Andrade remembers a Victorian-era dish with a nude or semi-nude woman on it that her grandmother gave her. D’Andrade was told it was a cheap item from Woolworth’s and to keep it in her room and out of sight. She later found out it was a gift to her grandmother from F.W. Woolworth himself and quite valuable.

Slakoff also may have passed on her tendencies toward doing well with one’s talent.

“She would call on wealthy Philadelphians to sell her designs and pick up their discarded clothing. Then she would make a regular run through the shanty towns to deliver the clothes and food to people who needed them,” D’Andrade said.

D’Andrade is a graduate of the Philadelphia College of Art (now known as the University of the Arts). For a special preview of the garments D’Andrade will be showing and selling today, please visit her website at www.sandydandrade.com.

Wearable Artist Sandy D’Andrade has created special designs for this Opera Season, along with her collection of non-opera garments, all specially designed for Chautauqua. These designs, including “Magic Flute,” pictured above, are available for purchase or custom order, along with old favorites from previous opera seasons.

THREE TAPS

‘A Manner of Being’

The following is a transcript of Chautauqua President Thomas M. Becker's Three Taps of the Gavel address to the Amphitheater on June 26, 2011.

Welcome to this morning's service of worship and to this ceremonial gaveling that we conduct for the purposes of opening the season and dedicating ourselves to the amazing array of gifts contained within the next nine weeks of the Chautauqua experience.

My wife Jane was telling me recently about a study she read that examines how the brain absorbs information contained in a new experience. Apparently, when we encounter a complex experience for the first time, the brain is intensely engaged in collecting massive amounts of information. The researchers point out that this phenomenon of data collection also explains the sense of time slowing down. Whereas the more we repeat the experience with a place or an event, the data collection slows dramatically and we rely on what we already know. This condition of repeating the familiar also frees the brain to absorb new information or to invite greater scrutiny of elements of the experience. Absent this deeper dive into information, time will fly.

Perhaps some of you can sympathize with my thoughts upon hearing Jane's recitation. The first was that this eerily explained how she manages to explore my faults with new and creative ways to plumb their depths. The second was a point of self recognition that I clearly manifest — what the comedian Steven Wright once called the combination of amnesia and déjà vu — that sense that I have forgotten this before.

I also thought about this sacred place, Chautauqua, and about the process of our annually assembling here for the purpose of exploring the best of human values and the enrichment of life; the way in which the place is both valued for and preserved as familiar. This sense of familiarity, strikingly available even to those here for the first time, allows us — indeed, frees us — to put our energies into a deeper, more complex understanding of the experiences of the season, whether they be relational, programmatic or spiritual. And the pace of our lives inside Chautauqua is different precisely because of this gift of familiarity and the investment in genuine engagement.

In his reflections on defining standards of political excellence, Edmund Burke includes, "... to have leisure to read, to reflect, to converse." Later he adds, "... be led to a guarded and regulated conduct, from a sense that you are considered as an instructor of your fellow citizens in their highest concerns, and that you act as a reconciler between God and man ..."

Are these not also standards for exhibiting the best in human values? Are these not also, in part, standards for good parenting?

James Baldwin once remarked, "Children rarely pay attention to their elders, but they never fail to imitate them."

Most of us in this Amphitheater have long since left the embrace of formal education. For many, that included higher education created as a means of teaching us to think critically, reason analytically, solve problems and communicate clearly. These capacities are critical to not only career and success in our chosen fields but also to a life of contribution to the broader good — to effective citizenship.

This Institution was founded by visionaries committed to effective citizenship, knowing full well that these capacities of thinking, reasoning, solving and communicating need constant exercise and regular renewal and refreshment. This Institution stands in service to the effort to be all we can be; to understand our times; to appreciate the imperfections of what it is to be human; to cope with the inevitable inadequacy of our efforts, even our best efforts; and to be resolved in the conviction that the effort itself, collective and personal, demonstrates the finest characteristic of the post-Eden human condition.

—Thomas M. Becker
President, Chautauqua Institution

Recently, Time magazine offered a scientific cover article titled, "The Optimism Bias," written by Tali Sharot. Sharot declares that research reveals we are more optimistic than realistic. We underestimate our chances of being divorced or getting cancer and overestimate our children's gifts (think of Lake Wobegon, where every child is above average); we even overestimate our own life spans. Sharot says we have an optimism bias. While collectively we are increasingly pessimistic, privately optimism is resilient. It makes sense, doesn't it? We are, after all, mortal. What point is there to saving or investing in the future if we do not have an optimistic sense that things can be better?

It turns out that there is an important interplay in the evolution of our species between our brain's capacity to consider alternative realities and the improved health and ease of stress offered by entertaining hope. "Our brains," says Sharot, "... aren't just stamped by the past. They are constantly being shaped by the future." Later the author states that research indicates, "... the core function of the memory system could in fact be to imagine the future — to enable us to prepare for what has yet to come. The system is not designed to perfectly replay past events ... it is designed to flexibly construct future scenarios in our minds. As a result, memory also ends up being a reconstructive process."

We come to these grounds with different ideas about the ways to fix the economy, to best worship God, to respond to the challenges of a fragile ecological environment. Some of us are steeped in the commitment of the preservation and performance of great art, others to the freedom of improvisation and the expression of the new. We differ on our sense of balance between individual and common good. We assess the risks to our freedom with different emphases and informed by very different philosophies. We come together to create this remarkable community in which it is the exchange of ideas, the exploration of the reasoned differences, the witness of art in the making, the engagement of ethics applied to our lives from moral precepts of different faith systems. We bring our children and our grandchildren to the assembly in the hope that this environment will spark within them an attraction to creative, rigorous, lifelong learning; that curiosity becomes a part of their character.

This is what Chautauqua is; with its familiar architecture and streetscape, its ritual and overt respect for its history; this is what we are about — this modeling of conduct, this engagement in creative citizenship, in the development of moral imagination.

Nabokov declared the soul a manner of being, not a constant entity. This annual assembly of community is in service to a manner of being: open, acquisitive, analytic, rational, faithful, hopeful, prudent, modest and respectful. "In service to" means that these gifts can be gained in the experience. But it takes effort.

There are multiple barriers to our capacity to make the most of this environment. We have infirmities.

We come with our biases, ideologies, certitudes and fears. Our curiosity is dulled by the ubiquitous vulgarities of much of the culture. Our political narrative bends to easy answers, smug formulae and simplistic solutions. And we mistake sound bites for deep thought and reality shows for creative entertainment.

Chautauqua offers an antidote to these infirmities. Here our barriers can be lowered, risks taken. And the rewards for doing so are vast, particularly if our modeling of this manner of being transcends the boundaries of Chautauqua the place, and the nine weeks of the season into the conduct of our lives throughout the year.

This institution, founded in optimism and steeped in hope, begins again for the 138th time, an assembly dedicated to the best of human values and the enrichment of life.

We hope that each and every one of you will find within these grounds an instructor of your highest concerns and a reconciler between yourselves and God.

I tap the gavel three times. Chautauqua 2011 has begun.

RELIGION

As the scent of the Chautauqua Fire Department’s barbecue wafted over the grounds, the Amphitheater filled with Chautauquans greeting old friends and getting ready for worship.

The choir, which had been practicing just a few minutes before, filled the choir loft. Jared Jacobsen was at the organ playing “Chorale in E” by César Franck. Members of the Board of Trustees and the Senior Staff of Chautauqua Institution filed onto the stage, followed by the Rev. Dr. Joan Brown Campbell, the Rev. Dr. Ross Mackenzie and the Rev. Alastair H. Symington.

“Welcome to the 137th year of Chautauqua and the 138th season of the Assembly,” Campbell said. “It is a time to be open to the mystery that is God and to the surprises God has in store for us.”

She welcomed the board and senior staff to worship and introduced Thomas M. Becker, president of Chautauqua Institution.

Becker opened his remarks by recalling a Jewish proverb: man thinks; God laughs.

“It seems to me that God is crying all the time,” he said in reference to the rain.

He welcomed the Rev. Mackenzie and introduced two new staff members, George Murphy, vice president and Chief Marketing Officer and John Shedd, land use and major projects manager. (For Becker’s full remarks to open the season, see Page 5 of today’s Daily)

And so worship began with the singing of the traditional opening hymn, “Holy, Holy, Holy.”

“Opening Sunday is filled with memories,” Campbell said.

She welcomed those who are new to Chautauqua, including the students from the International Order of The King’s Daughters and Sons, who come from five countries: Egypt, Lebanon, Hungary, Canada and the United States.

She also welcomed the four young adults who will lead the Abrahamic Program for Young Adults.

Chautauquans remembered those who had died since the 136th Assembly opened on June 27, 2010.

Mackenzie read the scripture, Acts 26: 24-32 and Luke 14:1-11.

As Symington prepared to preach, he thanked the congregation for the warm welcome and the “cool Scottish weather.” He was not, he said, at the royal wedding but rather was playing golf at the Royal Troon Golf Club.

“Chautauqua has a reputation for excellence, a generosity

Morning Worship

of spirit, kindness of word and welcome for the stranger,” he said.

“Try Harder to Irritate” was the title of his sermon.

“I love to listen to the chatter of children,” he said. “As the father of two daughters and five granddaughters, I think you get special insight into life from children.”

He told the story of a father on a train from Troon into Glasgow. The man’s 4-year-old was so excited he never stopped talking.

“The wee lad kept asking questions, all beginning with ‘why.’ Finally the dad said, ‘Well son, why not?’ I don’t know how children manage it, but persistence can be a real irritant.”

The church has a pedigree for being irritating, of pushing moribund institutions and false ideas. Jesus, he noted, was an irritant who pushed the religious leaders to the verge of anger. Paul pushed the Roman governor Festus, who finally sent him on to Caesar.

“We, as Christians, were irritating. Nothing is more vital in confronting this complacent millennium than attacking the veneer of complacency and intellectual blandness in the name of Jesus,” he said. “That is the spiritual, artistic and educational challenge of Chautauqua.”

Symington asserted that religion is no place for consensus politics that somehow “everyone is supposed to get on in the end.”

Paul embarrassed Agrippa by insisting that Agrippa believe the crucified Jesus was the Christ, the Son of God.

“Agrippa should have known better,” Symington said.

“Paul had once been one of his allies. Paul almost persuaded him.”

There was no middle of the road, no half measures so that no one would be offended in Paul’s world.

People today frown if others take a stand about anything.

“To convert the unconverted is impolite today. Today we would not find the church directly challenging the status quo,” Symington said. “But consensus obstructs the gospel. There are issues in society we need to face, and our churches are rearranging the deck chairs while the Titanic heads for the iceberg. Paul and Barnabas and others would have confronted society with the imperative of the gospel of Jesus Christ. We have to be accountable for our commitment.”

Martin Luther is an example of someone who took a stand and was ready to accept the consequences of being accountable for his faith. The family is a place that has been vitally important to the church.

“Do we try to persuade our families to be Christians? Do we remind our families of what they promised in baptism?” he said. “If we say it is not our business, then we are not an irritant.”

Symington asked if within our families, we teach self-interest only, or if we teach the centrality of justice and mercy, the dignity and worth of every person.

“Do we stand with Christ in his command to lean toward the poor?” Symington said. “It is our duty every day to confess that we are trying to convert you. We need to talk with the irritant of Christ.”

He urged the members of the congregation to annoy their neighbors by inviting them to church.

“Ask them to go and spend an hour with those who have a real hold on life,” he said.

The congregation laughed as he urged them to tell their neighbors “how sorry you are they don’t go, how deprived they must be.”

The daily challenge for Christians is to be less afraid to be Christian, not through church bodies but in “your own backyard,” Symington said. “Paul did it in more dangerous times. Go out and try harder to irritate with the Gospel. As the father said to his son on the train, ‘Well son, why not?’”

The Chautauqua Choir, under the direction of Jared Jacobsen, sang “Upon This Rock” by John Beck; “This Little Light of Mine,” a traditional gospel tune; “In Remembrance” by Jeffery L. Ames; and “Psalm 23” by Michael Hennagin.

Hennigan’s anthem was a gift from the Chautauqua Choir to the Institution’s choral library in tribute to Mackenzie on his retirement as director of the Department of Religion on Aug. 29, 1999.

The organ postlude was “Allegro” from Symphonie VII by Charles-Marie Widor.

PREPARING TO PREACH

Rev. Alastair Symington of Scotland prepares for Chautauqua’s first Sunday morning worship sermon. “Doing preaching is better than preaching preaching,” Symington said, noting the importance of actions reflecting values. See www.chqdaily.com for more photos of his preparation.

In special performance, Tendai to bring Gospel of Mark to life

The Rev. Rubin Tendai will bring the Gospel of Mark to life in a special performance at 6:30 p.m. tonight in Smith Wilkes Hall. The event is presented by the Department of Religion and co-sponsored by the Chautauqua Christian Fellowship.

Tendai, who has performed the Gospel of Mark as a ministry since 2005, is an ordained minister in the United Church of Christ and has served congregations in Washington, D.C.; Philadelphia; Hartford, Conn.; and Harlem, N.Y. He has served on the national staff of the United Church of Christ as communications director, writer and editor for “UC News” and the “Courage in the Struggle” newsletter. He earned a bachelor’s degree from Temple University in Philadelphia, a master of divinity degree from Howard University Divinity School, a master’s degree of sacred theology from Union Theological Seminary in New York City and a doctorate of ministry from New York Theological Seminary.

“The Gospel of Mark is the earliest account of what Jesus said and what he did,” Tendai said. “Besides being my favorite Gospel, Mark is the shortest one, and the first one to be written. It’s the more action-packed and tells the story in 16 chapters — the story from Jesus’ baptism until his resurrection.”

Tendai said that when he retired from pastoral ministry, he felt a calling to perform the Gospel of Mark — which he had seen performed off-Broadway — as a way to strengthen people’s faith.

“This portrayal takes you inside the story of Jesus so that you can experience the events and characters that have inspired and challenged people all over the world,” he said.

Chautauqua is a family affair for Tendai, who has visited Chautauqua for the past six years. His wife, Alanna Gayle, has come to Chautauqua since she was a child in the 1950s. Tendai’s performance this season comes during the same week his sister-in-law, Helene Gayle, president and CEO of CARE USA, examines global health and development during the Week One morning lecture platform.

CHAUTAUQUA LAKE

'Lake Walk' to reveal Chautauqua's water quality

Beverly Hazen
Staff Writer

Wonder about the contents of Chautauqua's water? Come today at 6:30 p.m. for the very first "Lake Walk" educational event sponsored by the Bird, Tree & Garden Club.

Meet at the covered porch of the Heinz Beach Fitness Center located on South Lake Drive at the corner of South Avenue and take part in a walk while learning about the lake.

Jan Bowman, associate professor of biology at Jamestown Community College, will present, "Researching Chautauqua's Waters."

Bowman's students have been researching the water quality and living creatures of Chautauqua's "streams," lake and shoreline for four summers, conducting water testing on the grounds every week during the summer.

Bowman said she would like to show the Chautauqua audience water areas near the club where some of the water samples are taken, and she may bring a few tools they use to show how the testing is done — weather permitting.

The water chemistry is tested, which includes the level of nutrients, phosphorus, temperature and macro invertebrate.

"We collect and take the samples back to the lab and then release them back in Chautauqua after the testing is over," she said.

The goal is to have a healthy ecosystem.

"It is exciting for my students to see Chautauqua Institution as a role model, as being very responsible to our recommendations that we put in last year, such as using rip rap, rain gardens and retention ponds," Bowman said.

"Chautauqua Institution is being very proactive to ensure that the quality of the water coming off the grounds is as good as possible."

These presentations are in partnership with the Chautauqua Watershed Conservancy. Various "walk leaders" who are active members of the organization will present the weekly programs. Everyone is welcome.

A guided tour of the Chautauqua Lake lakefront will begin at the covered porch at the Heinz Beach Fitness Center, located near the corner of South Lake Drive and South Avenue.

Learning Center hosts renowned golf educator Friday

Patrick Hosken
Staff Writer

Renowned golf educator Gary Wiren will visit the Chautauqua Golf Club Friday for a morning golf clinic.

From 8:30 a.m. to noon at the Chautauqua Golf Learning Center, Wiren will teach principles of golf to help players better enjoy the game, said Jack Voelker, general manager of the Golf Club.

These principles can be applied to any methodology through skills and individual practice techniques, Voelker added.

Inducted into the Professional Golfers' Association Hall of Fame in 2006, Wiren is also a member of the Golf Magazine World Golf Teachers Hall of Fame. He is one of only three professionals in both.

The clinic is open to the public. Potential attendees are encouraged to call the Learning Center at 716-357-6480 to register.

"We hope it raises the general awareness of what we have to offer here," Voelker said.

In Memory of
Donna B. Holland

Donna B. Holland died at age 84 on Friday, October 08, 2010. She was a loving mother, devoted wife, charitable volunteer, caring friend, and faithful servant of Christ. Donna was the wife of the Rev. Dr. Robert Cleveland Holland who served as minister of Shadyside Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh, PA from 1972 until 1983. She is survived by her daughter, Merritt Holland Spier and son-in-law, David Samuel Spier of Pittsburgh, PA.

As a young girl Donna sang with her Erie church choir at Chautauqua Institution and it was her dream to return one day. When Dr. Holland was invited to be the minister of the week in 1973 he also fell in love with Chautauqua and they purchased a home at 12 South Lake Dr. where Donna continued to spend every summer thereafter.

One of Donnas most beloved causes was the Chautauqua Presbyterian House. She served on the Board of Trustees, was instrumental in the building's capital improvements and will be remembered as "the heart and soul" of the Presbyterian House. She also served as Treasurer of The Wensley Guest House and would rejoice in the transformation currently taking place there. She graduated in the CLSC class of 1978 and continued to be involved in the preservation of the CLSC banners.

Donna would want all who knew her to celebrate her life by being helpful to those in need, by giving generously to charity and most importantly, by being devoted to their faith.

A short memorial service to celebrate the life of Donna B. Holland will be held at 4:00PM on Wednesday, June 29 at the Chautauqua Presbyterian House. Donna will be buried alongside her husband at Chautauqua Cemetery immediately following the service.

VISIT THE VILLAGE

The Magical Charm - The Village of Mayville Yesterday and Today

The historical village of Mayville offers an array of opportunities to shop, stay, dine & play. Many shops, galleries, and restaurants line the streets of Mayville, all of them holding a little past charm and a lot of amenities and comforts for visitors and residents to the Village of Mayville. Mayville is the "Play Ground" for residents and visitors to Chautauqua Institution.

Yesterday the Village of Mayville catered to area visitors and residents with charm, and today Mayville still offers the charm from the past, yet offers visitors and residents all the amenities and comforts of today. Below, a piece of magical charm from past to present!

(#1) In 1982 the Andriaccio family transformed a vintage gas station into one of the area's most popular restaurants. Former owners of the property, the DePonceau family tell of the 1930's when the service station charged 50 cents to repair flat tires except during summers when they charged $1.50!! Within walking distance of the Institution, Nick and Sally Andriaccio take pride in serving Italian and American favorites to returning visitors and local resident's year 'round.

(#2) The Wesley Cornell family managed hotels and retail shops, delivered mail, and supplied lumber for those first summer homes at Chautauqua Institution from the site that today is the Plumbush Produce & Bake Goods and the Plumbush Bed and Breakfast. Bert and Mary Rappole of Plumbush B&B are pleased to offer visitors elegant lodging accommodations and bountiful harvest from local farms as well as fruit pies, bread baked daily, brown eggs, jams and more.. This seasonal road side stand, located at the Victorian "pink lady" Plumbush B&B (circa 1865).

(#3) Nestled in an 1890's restored brick barn are two of the areas best kept secrets. 2 Chixx Gift Shoppe has classy gifts, antiques, jewelry, games, creative toys, garden and home accessories. Chautauqua Miniatures & Dollhouse Gallery is filled with vignettes, displays, dollhouses, kits and accessories to create that special memory. Customer service is our specialty; fun is our game and expect to leave smiling!

(#4) Located on what Chautauquans have known as The Red Brick Farm, one discovers western New York's finest French cuisine, minutes away from the Chautauqua Institution. Le Fleur restaurant located at the Red Brick Marketplace provides a unique romantic atmosphere in a historic Victorian home. Attention to detail is readily apparent in the pristine gardens overlooked by the restaurant and its French countryside decor. The carefully crafted menu has an extensive wine selection, impeccable service, and an elegant, yet cozy, atmosphere bringing the best of France to the shores of Chautauqua.

(#5) Olives/Bellinis. Chautauqua Suites Meeting & Expo Center houses both Olive's Restaurant, a AAA 3 diamond awarded Northern Italian Cuisine restaurant, and Bellini Lounge, a Tuscan themed Lounge featuring signature drinks and classic lounge menus. Olive's Restaurant originally located in the heart of the Village of Mayville, has continued its success at the Suites, while expanding the dining area featuring 4 private dining rooms to help make every experience a memorable one!

To be continued.....See Monday's Chautauquan Daily - Mayville Page for more history about Mayville Businesses

Quiet Regulations

Because Chautauqua’s tranquility is part of its attraction, noises from whatever source — radios, dogs, etc. — should be kept to a minimum on the grounds. Out of respect for those in attendance, silence should be observed near public buildings in which programs are taking place. General quiet on the Chautauqua grounds shall be maintained from midnight to 7 a.m.

CHAUTAUQUA CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

RENAISSANCE

Building on the Foundation

...In humility receive the word implanted, which is able to save your souls. But prove yourselves doers of the word, and not merely hearers who delude themselves. For if any one is a hearer of the word and not a doer, he is like a man who looks at his natural face in a mirror; for once he has looked at himself and gone away, he has immediately forgotten what kind of person he was. But one who looks intently at the perfect law, the law of liberty, and abides by it, not having become a forgetful hearer but an effectual doer, this man shall be blessed in what he does.
